APPENDIX

Revenue Act of 1934, c. 277, 48 Stat. 680:

SEC. 166. REVOCABLE TRUSTS.

Where at any time the power to revest in the grantor title to any part of the corpus of the trust is vested—

(1) in the grantor, either alone or in conjunction with any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of such part of the corpus or the income therefrom, or

(2) in any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of such part of the corpus or the income therefrom, then the income of such part of the trust shall be included in computing the net income of the grantor.

SEC. 167. INCOME FOR BENEFIT OF GRANTOR.

(a) Where any part of the income of a trust—

(1) is, or in the discretion of the grantor or of any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of such part of the income may be, held or accumulated for future distribution to the grantor; or

(2) may, in the discretion of the grantor or of any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of such part of the income, be distributed to the grantor; or

then such part of the income of the trust shall be included in computing the net income of the grantor.

(b) As used in this section, the term "in the discretion of the grantor" means "in the discretion of the grantor, either alone or in conjunction with any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of the part of the income in question".

Treasury Regulations 86, as originally promulgated under the Revenue Act of 1934:[1]

ART. 166–1. Trusts in the corpus of which the grantor retains an interest.—(a) Scope.—Section 166 prescribes that the income, or any part of the income, of certain trusts shall be taxed, not to the trustee nor to the beneficiaries, but to the grantor because of the fact that the grantor has retained a certain interest in the property of the trust. This article deals with the taxation of such income. The term "corpus," as used in this article, means any part or the whole of the property, real or personal, constituting the subject matter of the trust.

(b) Test of taxability to the grantor.—The sufficiency of the grantor's retained interest in the corpus resulting in the taxation of its income to the grantor is determined by a single test, namely, whether the grantor has failed to divest himself, permanently and definitively, of every right which might by any possibility enable him once more to possess and enjoy in title the trust corpus. For the purposes of this article the sufficiency of the grantor's retained interest in the corpus is not affected by the fact that the grantor has provided that the right to cause the title to the corpus to revest in himself is, or may at some future time be, vested in any person (either alone or in conjunction with the grantor) not having a substantial interest in the corpus or income therefrom adverse to the grantor.

[1] Art. 166–1 was amended on March 7, 1936, by T. D. 4629, XV–1 Cum. Bull. 140 (1936). Art. 167–1 was amended by T. D. 4759 on September 7, 1937, 1937–2 Cum. Bull. 117, and by T. D. 4860 on September 12, 1938, 1938–2 Cum. Bull. 184. No question in the case turns upon any change in the Regulations made by these amendments.

If the grantor has retained any such interest in the corpus he is taxable on the income therefrom regardless of—

(1) how great or how small, how remote or how contingent the interest may be;

(2) whatever the nature of interest retained may be; whether the interest retained is vested, contingent, in reversion, or otherwise; whether conditioned on the precedent giving of notice, or on elapsing of a period of years, or on the happening of a specified event; whether taken by appointment, or by designation in the trust instrument, or merely by virtue of the grantor not conveying his whole estate in the corpus, or otherwise;

(3) the time or times at which such interest will revest the title in the grantor in possession and enjoyment, whether within or without the taxable year, whether or not the time be fixed, determinable or certain to come;

(4) whether, if the revesting in the grantor of title to the corpus is in any way dependent upon the act of anyone, that person be the grantor, or any person not having a substantial interest in the corpus or income therefrom adverse to the grantor, or both. A bare legal interest, such as that of a trustee, is never substantial and never adverse;

(5) when the trust was created.

ART. 167–1. Trusts in the income of which the grantor retains an interest.—(a) Scope.—Section 167 prescribes that the income, or any part of the income, of certain trusts shall be taxed to the grantor, not because the grantor has retained a certain interest in the corpus of the trust (as in section 166), but because of his retention of a certain interest in the income of the trust. This article deals with the taxation of such income. The term "income," as used in this article, means any part or the whole of the income of the trust.

(b) Test of taxability to the grantor.—The test of the sufficiency of the grantor's retained interest in the trust income, resulting in the taxation of such income to the grantor, is whether the grantor has failed to divest himself, permanently and definitively, of every right which might, by any possibility, enable him to have the income, at some time, distributed to him, actually or constructively. Such a distribution to the grantor occurs if the income is paid to him or to another according to the grantor's direction or if, though paid to another pursuant to the terms of the trust, the benefit of the income inures to the grantor. The income so inures if it is or may be applied in satisfaction of a legal obligation of the grantor, does or may increase his net worth, does or may in any way enrich him, or does or may enable him in any way to enjoy, in substance, such income. Such a distribution also occurs if the income is applied in payment of premiums upon policies of insurance on the grantor's life.

For the purposes of this article, the sufficiency of the grantor's retained interest in the income is not affected by the fact that the grantor has provided that the right to so effect or direct the distribution of income is, or may at some future time be, vested in any person (either alone or in conjunction with the grantor) not having a substantial interest in the income adverse to the grantor.

If the grantor has retained any such interest in the income, such income is taxable to the grantor regardless of—

(1) whether it may be distributed currently or accumulated for future distribution;

(2) whether such distribution, either current or subject to accumulation, is fixed by the trust instrument or is dependent on an exercise of discretion;

(3) whether, if such distribution is in any way effected by or dependent on an exercise of discretion, the person exercising the discretion is the grantor or a person not having a substantial interest in the income adverse to the grantor, or both. A bare legal interest, such as that of a trustee, is never substantial and never adverse;
